Introduction

Culture&’s New Museum School provides a pipeline of fresh, diverse talent to the arts and heritage sector. Over the past 9 years, New Museum School has provided accessible and flexible training to 164 young people from diverse backgrounds with around 74% finding full-time employment in the sector within six months of graduating.

Whilst we are proud of this achievement, we realise that this is only the start of our commitment. Having supported these young professionals to gain entry level access to employment we followed them up to see how their careers were progressing. A survey conducted with them tells of their encounter with a ‘glass ceiling’ and the barriers that impede their career progression, experiences that reflect the findings of broader surveys into diversity in the museum workforce (Arts Council England 2019). When asked how New Museum School could continue to support their careers they asked for flexible professional development opportunities and specifically support in accessing postgraduate qualifications.

Partnering with the School of Museum Studies at the University of Leicester and with a group of cultural organisations committed to inclusive transformation, Culture& has now developed a new model - The New Museum School Advanced Programme - to take forward this work in response to the needs of our New Museum School alumni. The New Museum School Advanced Programme is funded by the Esmée Fairbairn Foundation, the Marstine Family Foundation, the University of Leicester and 15 cultural partners (see full list below) and will enable us to propel UK-based people from diverse backgrounds underrepresented in the sector and particularly those from Black, Asian and Minority Ethnic backgrounds and many of them New Museum School alumni, forward in their career development. We will launch this new training offer in September 2021, working closely with sector organisations and our academic partner, the University of Leicester.

We have secured two years' funding to support the New Museum School Advanced Programme which will enable us to make positive change in the career development of diverse arts and heritage leaders of the future. Our overall strategic aim is to enable the arts and heritage sector to support a more diverse range of arts professionals in achieving sustainable career progression and attaining leadership roles.

The New Museum School Advanced Programme is:

- nurturing the brightest, most promising diverse talent for the arts and heritage workforce by supporting them to further develop their creative and critical skills and experience;
- allowing professionals to continue full time employment within the arts and heritage sector whilst studying by providing access to distance, flexible and modular postgraduate qualifications;
- ensuring an accessible recruitment process for learners with wide ranging backgrounds;
- expanding the expert knowledge of diverse arts and heritage professionals across a range of disciplines from museum studies, arts management and curatorial studies and across key aspects of professional practice by providing easy access to short courses and summer schools;
- supporting participants to advance their careers;
• building a self-sustaining peer network by brokering one-to-one mentoring and networking opportunities that are matched to individuals’ interests and career aspirations;
• increasing professional accreditation for New Museum School alumni through opening routes to Associateship of the Museums Association;
• diversifying the arts and heritage workforce;
• making real step changes in how heritage is interpreted and expand audiences by ensuring the perspectives of diverse professionals inform programmes that appeal to a wider cross section of our communities;
• changing and improve the UK’s arts and heritage organisations in terms of workforce recruitment and retention of staff from diverse backgrounds.

Who we are

Culture& is an independent arts and education charity based in London. Formerly known as Cultural Co-operation, we have been working for nearly 30 years, in partnership with arts and heritage institutions and artists to develop programmes that promote diversity in the workforce and with audiences. We aim to open up the arts and heritage workforce through our workforce training and aligned public programmes.

University of Leicester’s School of Museum Studies is amongst the best in the world and has a strong international reputation for equipping practitioners with the skills, experience and knowledge to shape dynamic, socially relevant and inclusive museums. The School of Museum Studies offers:
• learning and development for culture professionals that engages with leading research and innovative thinking and practice in the sector;
• accessible modular pathways to achieve internationally recognised postgraduate qualifications;
• a long-standing and evidenced commitment to inclusion and a diverse student cohort both of which Culture& can augment through this partnership;
• a team that is committed to accessible and inclusive learning, supporting students with diverse learning needs and active in shaping curricula and resources that draw on a rich mix of practitioners and research-based perspectives;
• a team of experienced and connected academics already engaged in collaborative projects with existing Culture& partners;
• a deep and mutual understanding of the need for greater diversity in the UK museum workforce.

New Museum School Advanced Programme - What's involved?

As part of the NMS Advanced Programme, you will combine postgraduate study with tailored mentoring and networking opportunities. At the core of the Advanced Programme sits the Postgraduate Diploma/MA/MSc in Museum Studies and the Postgraduate Diploma/MA/MSc in Socially Engaged Practice in Museums and Galleries, distance learning programmes that enable you to join a cohort of students and study around your work and family commitments. Demanding 19 hours a week of study time, you will work with a team of dedicated Tutors through a series of modules – see course descriptions and structure below – have the opportunity to attend the annual summer school and to work with one of our Advanced Programme cultural partners on your Project in Practice. In addition to support from Tutors in the School of Museum Studies, you will receive tailored mentoring and take part in an annual sharing of learning around inclusive transformation with our University and cultural partners.

Course descriptions

The Postgraduate Diploma/MA/MSc in Museum Studies and the Postgraduate Diploma/MA/MSc in Socially Engaged Practice in Museums and Galleries will provide you with the practical and theoretical experience needed to become a creative and effective museum and gallery professional and to further advance your career in the sector. The course is delivered in a variety of ways, including online lectures, seminars and tutorials, and discussion activities. The programme is designed to fit around your existing commitments, and is sympathetically structured to allow you to break up the work into manageable chunks and focus on one assignment at a time.

By taking a distance learning course, you have the flexibility to fit studying around your existing work and family commitments. The distance learning course offers the same subject coverage and leads to the same qualification as our campus-based course. You will be taught by experts in the field, who have been involved in expanding the academic discipline of museum studies over many years and will be supported by a team of highly skilled Associate Tutors, all of whom are highly experienced museum and heritage professionals.
Postgraduate Diploma/MA/MSc in Museum Studies

The course will equip you with a thorough knowledge and critical understanding of current principles, practice, and contemporary debates in Museum Studies. Over the course you will explore areas such as:

- the social role of museums and art galleries
- activist practice in museums and galleries
- collections care and management
- exhibitions strategies
• museum design
• museum ethics and interpretation

To complete the Postgraduate Diploma, you will take five core modules, followed by three option modules, giving you the opportunity to delve into your particular interests and to develop your expertise in the field of your choice.

Core modules:

• The Museum and Change
• Designing for Creative Lives
• Objects and Collections: Care, Management and Curation
• Engaging Audiences
• Project in Practice

Choose three option modules (subject to availability) from:

• Lifelong Learning
• Museums and the Natural Environment
• Heritage
• Digital
• Museums and Contemporary Issues

If you are taking the MA or MSc, you will also complete a Research Project on the topic of your choice. For many, it is the most exciting part of the course, as a self-directed opportunity to contribute new ideas, new knowledge, or critique existing scholarship or practice at an advanced academic level. You might choose to write this up as a dissertation, but you could also consider writing a paper, a professional report, or perhaps even producing a film. If your Research project concerns a science collection or museum, or if the nature of your investigation is 'scientific', you can receive a Master of Science (MSc) degree instead of a Master of Arts (MA) degree.

Modules shown represent choices available to current students. The range of modules available and the content of any individual module may change in future years. For a full description of each Module, learning hours and outcomes, please visit https://le.ac.uk/courses/museum-studies-ma-msc-dl/2020.

Postgraduate Diploma/MA/MSc in Socially Engaged Practice in Museums and Galleries

In the 21st century, leading museums, galleries and heritage practice began to make use of socially engaged approaches. This course will examine the role of museums and practitioners in shaping society's understandings of contemporary issues, upholding values of inclusivity and accessibility, and ensuring that museums benefit their communities. Choosing to study Socially Engaged Practice in Museums and Galleries will give you access to leading research and practice on the impact that museums and galleries can have on advocating for social justice and human rights, and how they might better explore and address the contemporary issues that face our societies.

This course is based on research that has been undertaken over the last 15 years by the Research Centre for Museums and Galleries (RCMG) at Leicester, and draws on broader global shifts in practice. It will introduce you to cutting-edge examples of socially-driven professional practice and challenge you to think deeply about the role of culture in society and the characteristics of socially purposeful museums and galleries.
Over the course, you will engage critically and creatively with areas such as:

- partnership working
- participatory practices
- learning and education
- design and experience
- visitor studies and audience research
- leadership at all levels of an organisation
- how socially engaged practice can be embedded into the work of museums and galleries
You will gain a deeper understanding of the historical, current and emerging debates, theories, issues, techniques and practice in order to effectively develop and advocate for socially engaged practice in museums, galleries, and similar organisations. The course offers a platform to explore and experiment with ways of maximising the impact that museums and galleries can have on the wellbeing of communities, on civil debates around controversial topics, and on the building of fairer and more equal societies.

To complete the Postgraduate Diploma, you will take five core modules, followed by three option modules, giving you the opportunity to delve into your particular interests and to develop your expertise in the field of your choice.
Core modules

- Exploring Socially Engaged Practice in Museums and Galleries
- Ethical Practice
- Activist Practice
- Museums and Transformation
- Project in Practice

Choose three option modules (subject to availability) from:

- Objects and Collections: care, management, curation
- Lifelong Learning
- Museums and the Natural Environment
- Heritage
- Digital
- Cultural Management and Marketing

If you are taking the MA or MSc, you will also complete a Research Project on the topic of your choice. For many, it is the most exciting part of the course, as a self-directed opportunity to contribute new ideas, new knowledge, or critique existing scholarship or practice at an advanced academic level. You might choose to write this up as a dissertation, but you could also consider writing a paper, a professional report, or perhaps even producing a film. Evaluation

The New Museum School programme is being rigorously evaluated to ensure Culture& and the University of Leicester are able to take stock of what works, in order to adopt a learning mindset focused on continuously improving. The evaluation is being led by Professor Victoria Tischler at the University of Exeter and will be working with a research assistant to gather data on all programme deliverables and outcomes and will be periodically in touch with students, host organisations and the University of Leicester to gather monitoring data and feedback. Evaluation reports will be published at the conclusion of the programme in 2025.
